

Mrs. Gail R. Maye

Mrs. Gail R. Maye, a 1969 graduate of Warner Robins High, spent her entire professional career in the district. A graduate of Georgia Southern in 1974, she began teaching in 1976 at Northside Junior High; in 1988, she transferred to Warner Robins High.

In 1999, she accepted a new position as Director of Energy Education. In this role, she developed a culture of environmental awareness to save energy in our schools, ultimately creating an award-winning program.

While teaching, her many contributions outside of the classroom include cheerleader coach for 10+ years while also sponsoring Pep Club, the theatre program and producing the annual. She was voted “favorite teacher” for multiple years and was a Houston County Teacher of the Year finalist. While at Warner Robins High, she sponsored the Anchor Club and continued to do the annual for Northside Junior. Summers were busy too; for 17 years she organized student trips, and approximately 600 students traveled with her both in the U.S. and abroad!

After retiring in 2004, she and her husband, Calvin, moved to the Western North Carolina mountains on a farm they call Gobbler's Moon. Their son, Steve, lives nearby, an added bonus.

“She always had high expectations of her students and required the very best from us. Her dynamic teaching style, content mastery, and her awesome personality led many students past the brink of mediocrity and uncertainty into a world of possibilities. Every day was a new adventure!”

~ Dr. Lionel Brown, former student and peer mentor

Many educators have the intellect, education and training to be a success, but Gail also has that innate love of life, positive outlook and drive that transcends 'success' and empowers her to be outstanding! ~ Carolyn Tatum, fellow teacher
