C-001	History Through Deaf Eyes	In this storybook, during a visit to an imaginary exhibition, statues of deaf people from the past provide a glimpse into what we know about deaf people through history. With full-page illustrations by artist Val Nelson-Metlay, the book provides an easy-to-read overview of the history of deaf people from the earliest records to the present day. (two parts)	book	2002	$10.95 (book) $14.95 (guide)
C-013	Unlocking the Curriculum: Principles for Achieving Access in Deaf Education	The paper documents the "failure" of deaf education and proposes a model program for the education of deaf children. Reasons given for this failure include lack of linguistic access to curricular content and the cycle of low expectations. Early acquisition of American Sign Language (ASL) is encouraged both to develop cognitive skills and improve the child's ability to learn English. Twelve principles of the proposed model educational program include: sign language as the first language of deaf children, separation of sign and spoken language in the curriculum, second language (English) learning through reading and writing; and the least restrictive environment as one in which deaf children acquire a natural sign language and thus, access to spoken language and curriculum content.	booklet	1989	$2.00
C-032	Lend Us Your Ears: A Hands-On Guide for Itinerant Teachers of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing	This book gives itinerant teachers lesson guidelines with hands-on activities that K-3 students will love to do. Each lesson for grades K/1 and 2/3 is divided into four sections: prescribed learning outcomes, suggested instructional strategies, suggested assessment strategies, and recommended materials. Lend Us Your Ears covers a variety of hearing loss-related topics: hearing loss and hearing aids, individual hearing loss, and strategies to improve communication, learning, and self-advocacy. Completed worksheets can be compiled into a permanent portfolio which provides easy tracking for your records and an individual keepsake to show family and friends.	book	2001
C-033	PreReading Strategies	Build students' reading comprehension by teaching them prereading strategies. This manual presents practical strategies that help students make use of their prior knowledge of a subject in preparation for reading. Prereading strategies such as anticipation guides, webs, semantic maps, and place mats build student interest and curiosity. Samples of student work are included.	book	1992

G-041	Alone in the Mainstream: A Deaf Woman Remembers Public School	When Gina Oliva first went to school in 1955, she didn't know that she was "different." But, when the kindergarten teacher played the piano to signal the next activity and the other students began to move, Oliva didn't react. She couldn't hear the music. So began her journey as a "solitary," her term for being the only hard of hearing child in the entire school. Gina felt alone because she couldn't communicate easily with her classmates, but also because none of them had a hearing loss like hers. It wasn't until years later at Gallaudet University that she discovered that she wasn't alone and that her experience was common among mainstreamed deaf students. This book recounts Oliva's story, as well as those of many other solitaires.	book	2004	$29.95

G-046	I Have a Sister My Sister is Deaf	Like all sisters, this one likes to jump, tumble and climb on monkey bars. She plays the piano, though she can't sing or hear any tune. She feels the cat purring in her lap, but can't hear the telephone ring or the door bang. Still, she can say more with her face and shoulders than most people can with words. This is a very special sister. For ages 4 to 8.	book	1977
G-047	A Place for Grace	Grace is a little dog with big dreams. She longs to be a seeing-eye dog, but is disappointed when she finds that she is too small for guide dog school. Grace isn't discouraged for long, though. She's discovered by Charlie, a deaf man who sees her perform a remarkable rescue and who knows a way she can use her eagerness and courage to help other people. Charlie takes Grace to a hearing dog program, where she learns the skills dogs need to assist the hearing impaired throughout the day. School is difficult for Grace, but thanks to the flexibility of Mrs. Lombardi, the program director, and Charlie's encouragement, Grace finally succeeds in her own inimitable way. A Place for Grace introduces children to the challenges of people with a hearing loss and gives them the opportunity to see how people communicate through ASL. Charlie uses some creative problem-solving to help Grace complete the hearing dog program.	book	1993
G-048	Silent Observer	Christy MacKinnon lived a very different life than most people do today. She was born in Nova Scotia in 1889, a place and time when most people worked on a family farm, traveled by horse and carriage, and went to school in a one-room schoolhouse. She was also different because she lost her hearing at the age of two from a bout of whooping cough. Through her colorful drawings and words, Christy remembers those days in Silent Observer. Her childhood was full of warmth and joy as she played and did daily chores with her many brothers and sisters. Like many people in her day, she knew sadness, too, from the loss of her mother and other loved ones due to illnesses that were common. Through it all, Christy grew into a remarkable young woman with a fine talent for art. Her loving memories, told as if they were just happening, will enchant readers young and old who share her story of a harder but wonderful time that has passed.	book	1993

G-050	The Flying Fingers Club: The Ghost of Tomahawk Creek	A ghost-like figure shot up from sitting on the side of the tunnel at the entrance of the storage room. His face was gleaming white and he wore a dirty, tattered blue soldier's uniform. In the dark, the boys could see his large boy hands. "I've been waiting for you," said the ghost. He made some eerie, guttural sounds as if he was choking. Matt turned to Donald, but Donald was too frightened to interpret in sign language to his deaf friend what the ghost had said. The ghost picked up his rifle and aimed it at the boys. "This pitcher is mine and I've come back to claim it." The ghost's teeth began to chatter and he made guttural sounds again. The ghost aimed his gun over the boys' heads. "POW!" The gun exploded and the tunnel filled up with smoke and the smell of gunpowder.... G-053	Matthew Pinkowski's Special Summer	Reading Level: Young Adult. When 13-year-old Matthew Pinkowski's family decides to move to a new house in a new neighborhood at the beginning of the summer, Matthew is less than excited. Matthew loves the summer because it means a break from school, where he struggles with reading and writing because of a learning disability. He is unsure about what to expect from Still Water, Minnesota, where his family is moving. Despite his concerns, Matthew's first summer in his new house is filled with adventure after adventure. First, Matthew saves the life of his young neighbor, Tommy, and gets to ride on a float in the town's Pioneer Day parade with Tommy's sister, Sandy. Later, Matthew, Tommy, and Sandy meet Laura, a deaf girl visiting her aunt and uncle in Still Water for the summer. The four become friends and figure out who is stealing boats from Laura's uncle's marina.	book	1991	$13.70
G-054	The Flying Fingers Club: Hasta Luego, San Diego	Hasta Luego, San Diego is a rollicking tale of intrigue that again shows shrewd thinking by Donald, who has trouble learning in school; Matt, who is deaf; and Susan, who convinces Hector that no one should be hurting him, especially at home.	book	1991

G-058	Silent Alarm: On the Edge with a Deaf EMT	For 15 years, Steven Schrader worked as a firefighter and an EMT in Atlanta, GA. There, he faced the day-to-day stress created by having to deal with nonstop human catastrophe, one moment caring for terribly hurt accident victims, the next talking down a suicidal person from a rooftop. Added to these difficulties were his own personal struggles, not the least being the bias he experienced because of his severe hearing loss. Schrader makes palpable the constant tension of being the first summoned to life-or-death situations, and he also outlines the grim reality of being an EMT in dangerous parts of the community. His hearing loss occasionally hindered him, and sometimes saved him, but, mostly, as it should, it became part of the background to the astonishing compassion in the stories he tells.	book	1995
G-059	Deaf President Now! The 1988 Revolution at Gallaudet University	Deaf President Now! reveals the groundswell leading up to the history-making week in 1988 when the students at Gallaudet University seized the campus and closed it down until their demands were met. Deaf President Now! details how a little-known group called the "Ducks" urged the student leaders to ultimate success, including an analysis of the reasons for their achievement in light of the failure of many other student movements. This fascinating study also scrutinizes the lasting effects of this remarkable episode in "the civil rights movement of the deaf." Deaf President Now! tells the full story of the insurrection at Gallaudet University, an exciting study of how deaf people won social change for themselves and all disabled people everywhere through a peaceful revolution.	book	1995	$36.95

Classroom teachers who have deaf or hard of hearing students in their classes, principals who are responsible for the success of inclusion, and support personnel will also find this book and invaluable resource. Special materials in the book include in-depth information for working with students' families, sample presentations for orienting school personnel to the needs of deaf and hard of hearing students, and handouts for interpreters and classroom teachers.	book	2003
P-063	We Are Equal Partners	This paper describes practices that are used by programs selected for a National Forum on Family Involvement held at Gallaudet University. The programs develop family activities based on information from the families about family priorities and needs and provide families with the skills and strategies they need to enable their deaf or hard of hearing child to be a full participant in the family. The editor summarizes the recommended practices and describes how these practices are put into action at the forum participants' program. The paper is intended to provide service providers with insight about the effectiveness of their programs and of their interactions with deaf and hard of hearing children.	binder	2002
P-064	Transition Planning and Programming: Empowerment Through Partnership	This paper addresses transition planning and programming for deaf and hard of hearing youths as a broad and longitudinal process that begins at an early age. Through a developmental progression of experiences and activities, students are equipped with skills for economic self-sufficiency; self-determination; and interpersonal, educational, vocational, social, and leisure pursuits. The authors propose 18 premises that describe how parents, schools, and other stakeholders can work together with students to foster and effective transition process.	binder	1999

P-065	Becoming Bilingual: Facilitating English Literacy Development Using ASL in Preschool	Preschool programs serving deaf and hard of hearing children face the tough challenge of educating children with varying language skills, yet somewhat similar language development needs. A majority of these children have yet to develop a strong linguistic base. A small number of students from deaf families have strong first language skills but need to have curriculum delivered in the language that they understand. To address this problem, the authors propose the use of ASL and written language to facilitate the development of English literacy. They take a bilingual perspective in which ASL is the primary language for face-to-face communication and written English is the second language. The paper cites extensive research supporting this approach and provides many examples of bilingual practices and strategies that promote English literacy.	binder	1997

P-068	Golden Nuggets: A Practical Guide for the Beginning Teacher of Students who are Deaf/HH	This guide is intended to be a resource that new teachers (and student teachers) can use for reference when they encounter issues or simply want to read about many things that are possible. The guide was developed through weekly question-and-answer responses to new teachers of students who are deaf and hard of hearing. The intention was to provide both general and specific guidance to the beginner, to demonstrate that one need not always re-invent the wheel.	binder
P-069	Our Forgotten Children: Hard of Hearing Pupils in the Public Schools	This book provides up-to-date information on the education of children who are hard of hearing. Key topics include: definitions, early intervention, medical aspects of hearing loss, classroom acoustics, the latest hearing assistance technology, cochlear implants, federal regulations including Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), resources and more. This is an important resource for parents of children who are hard of hearing and those who educate them.	book	2001
P-070	Language Learning Practices with Deaf Children, Third Edition	This text provides future and practicing teachers of deaf children with basic theoretical and research knowledge, as well as specific principles and practices for fostering the development of language and reading. Language Learning Practices with Deaf Children describes the variety of language development theories and practices that are used with deaf children, without advocating any particular approach. Chapters cover the following information: some accepted facts and known problems of language acquisition and instruction with hearing and with deaf children, implications for language development in deaf children, a history of instructional practices in language development with deaf children, major approaches of the present time (natural methods; structural methods; ASL-ESL; specialized programs for children from multicultural homes; and technology), reading and writing, and assessment and monitoring of language development.	book	2004
P-071	Writing Measurable IEP Goals and Objectives	Let this book help you to quickly and effectively write accurate and measurable IEP goals and objectives. Many special educators view IEPs as burdensome, but IEPs are necessary, are required by law, and when done properly, can be extremely helpful in guiding the student's educational trajectory. The art and science of writing truly measurable goals and objectives can be mastered so they are easy to compose, aren't time consuming, and can be grasped by all appropriate staff involved in the IEP process (and parents as well).	book	2003

P-083	Educating Deaf Students: From Research to Practice	In Educating Deaf Students: From Research to Practice, Marc Marschark, Harry G. Lang, and John A. Albertini offer an accessible evaluation of the research literature on the needs and strengths of deaf children and on the methods that have been used-successfully and unsuccessfully-to teach both deaf and hearing children. The authors lay out the common assumptions that have driven deaf education for many years, revealing some of them to be based on questionable methods, conclusions, or interpretations, while others have been lost in the cacophony of alternative educational philosophies. By evaluating what we know, what we do not know, and what we thought we knew about learning among deaf children, the authors provide parents, teachers, and administrators valuable new insights into educating deaf students and others with special needs.	book	2002

P-086	ESL/EFL Teaching: Principles for Success	This book is an explanation of second language teaching methodology supported by classroom examples. It includes detailed discussions and examples of EFL (English as a foreign language) teaching as well as many scenarios from ESL (English as a second language) classes. The emphasis throughout is on teaching language through meaningful content. The authors provide an overview of orientations that ESL/EFL teachers have taken. They describe language teaching methods that fit each orientation and then present the orientation that is most consistent with principles that lead to success.	book	1998
P-087	Whose Judgment Counts? Assessing Bilingual Children, K-3	Whose Judgment Counts? Was written to provide some help. It empowers teachers with the skills they need to make informed assessments of bilingual children--examining social, cultural, and language issues first, then focusing on learning. This book offers a clear introduction to the issues involved for bilingual students and the role that classroom assessment plays in their school experiences. The author summarizes what the research tells us, then provides case studies of a group of highly skilled teachers assessing bilingual children.	book	1998

S-099	The Picture Plus Dictionary	The Picture Plus Dictionary presents a basic functional vocabulary essential for the development of reading skills and face-to-face signed and/or spoken language. The 4500+ entries replace the traditional word/picture and word/sign format found in most picture dictionaries and sign language dictionaries with meaningful contextual settings that cover a wide range of subjects relating to daily life. Each frame presents the entry word used in a sentence, a sign language drawing, and a picture to help convey the word meaning as used in that sentence. The "Plus" in the title refers to the sign language drawings that form part of each entry. This dictionary was developed to assist deaf, hard of hearing and second language learners master the use of a basic vocabulary as used in connected language structures. Many signs have an obvious conceptual base, and the sign drawings should enhance comprehension for all learners.		1997	dictionary
S-100	Diccionario Visual Plus	This Spanish translation is a textual translation without illustrations. It is designed as a bridge into the Picture Plus Dictionary for Spanish readers. Entries follow the English word order and are linked by page number for easy access. A valuable extension to the Picture Plus Dictionary. To be used with S-99.		2005	dictionary
S-101	The ABC's of Sign Language-Second Edition	This book was designed as an introduction to basic vocabulary in sign language. All words are listed in English and Spanish.	book	1997
S-102	Advanced Sign Language Vocabulary	This book is a collection of advanced sign language vocabulary intended for use by educators, interpreters, parents, or anyone wishing to enlarge their sign vocabulary. The signs have been collected from established base signs and initialized base signs observed within the deaf community. The collection represents vocabulary one would encounter in an educational or employment-related setting, and the signs are divided into academic categories. Includes signs for English, Social Studies, Science, Math, Health, Non-Academics, Educational Signs and General Vocabulary. Each sign is clearly illustrated and movement is both shown and described.	book	1991

This second series, "Libros en Accion," which includes Signing Fiesta 5, 6, and 7 teaches you how to translate Spanish stories into sign with the use of nine colorful books. Finally, Spanish speaking families and their Deaf children can enjoy reading books together.	VHS/3 books	1996
V-179	Signing Fiesta 12	Phrases related to "Daily Routines" including Morning, Afternoon, Night, School, and Dinner. "Daily Activities" is a video series that focuses on commonly used phrases used within everyday life. It is known that language is best learned through phrases and not simply focusing on single words. These videos present an authentic approach that a Spanish-speaking parent can use in order to interact with their deaf child. Merced actually demonstrates how one can use sign language and speak Spanish simultaneously.	VHS

V-206	Sound and Fury	If you could make your deaf child hear, would you? Sound and Fury follows this intimate, heart-rending tale of the Artinians, and extended family with deaf and hearing members across three generations. Together they confront a technological device that can help the deaf to hear but may also threaten deaf culture – and their bonds with each other. For Peter Artinian and his wife, both of whom are deaf, a surgical ear implant for their five-year-old daughter Heather means a choice between two worlds: an unfamiliar hearing world and the deaf world, a robust culture in its own right united by a uniquely visual and artistic language. Heather Artinian –is caught between her deaf parents and her hearing grandparents, as they argue about her future. The debate is sometimes silent, but by no means quiet. When all is done, Sound and Fury speaks volumes about the choices we make and the battles we fight in order to be heard. DVD	DVD	2000	$24.95
V-207	Covering the Basics: Cochlear Implants	Making decisions about hearing assistive devices can involve a large amount of confusing information. The medical industry, insurance industry, and companies that manufacture cochlear implants and hearing aids do not often include information from a community perspective. This videotape gives important facts – but with a human touch, never forgetting that decisions about assistive devices and the issues that surround these decisions are ultimately about people. V-249	The Treasure	VHS color 60 minutes. The signed narrations are voiced over for viewers' convenience. Ella Mae Lentz, a well known Deaf poet, signs her most memorable poems. This collection of poems traces the development of her poetic style, beginning with her original works in written English which were later translated into ASL, and continues to her more recent works composed in ASL. Through her poems Ella takes us with her on an experience with one of her favorite teachers; she creates visual music; relates the pain felt when two people no longer talk to each other; tells how it felt to be dismissed because she was a girl; speaks to hearing parents about the identity of their deaf children; warns against the conflicts within the deaf community that threaten its very fabric; rails against language abuse that Deaf children face when denied the right to use ASL; and so much more.	VHS	1995
