Practice reading to your stuffed animals.	Using legos or other toys you may have at home, build a setting or character from a book you have read.	Using video chat or email, talk to your oldest living relative about a significant historical event they lived through. Ask them how that time period compares to the pandemic we are facing today.
Make up a story about your favorite stuffed animal or pet. Tell it to one of your family members!	Read outside while getting fresh air.	Think of the last novel you read in your ELA class. Write a new twist ending that changes the entire book.
Draw a new cover for your favorite picture book.	Read to your pet (don't be upset if they don't act interested!)	Watch the news and write your thoughts, opinions, and feelings on what was

Create a new character to put in your favorite book. Illustrate a picture of your new character.	Call/video chat a friend or family member to tell them about the book you read.	Compare and contrast two books you've read recently. Remember to think about the characters, setting, and plot of both books.
Read a book to or with a family member. They can be with you or this can be over the phone or video chat. Maybe read with someone you haven't seen in a while over the phone.	If you have access to technology, go to storylineonline.net . Enjoy a story being read by a celebrity!	Make a video describing your favorite book. Try to get others to read it! Don't give too much information away. Just try to get them hooked!

Read to your pet (don't be upset if they don't act interested!)	Make a fort (with blankets, chairs, whatever you have) and read in it with a flashlight.	Turn your favorite story upside down. Change big elements of your favorite story to make it your own. Ex. fractured fairy tales - make the villain the hero. Have fun with it!
