

Dear sweet, dear, ladies, gentlemen, and hoodlums, I'm so bored, ^{in English class,} I have to do something; so for lack of anything more interesting, I'll chat with you. "I'm fine. How are you?"

That's the customary introductory paragraph to friendly letters, I believe.
However, my situation is not exactly customary, so now I'll just chat.

Danny, my teeth fittings do not know how to behave; you're not giggling them with your lullaby of foot shakings, ^{don't get} out of practice.

Danny B., that valiant desk almost had me marking you tardy. He would had an upsurge of joy because you are on the trip. Keep the mustache combed.

Billy, the office will not know how to get the day rolling without your going in. Be sure to get the lunch count correct.

Richard, blonds are always missed. So are nice smiles. Somehow too, the warmth of feeling that two close-together desks express isn't nearly so heartwarming as that radiated by the two people who are usually there.

Frankie, there's a big vacancy where the pretty, long hair and masculine physique of a fine young man is not in its proper place - wherever that is?

Party, many times, but I don't think we just about to be. To avoid however to present, just looking at the look we to just right and get out in some place.

Then I will go away some first that you know, say of the fund, as grade, and then to form, I always have picture on my mind. But you know that in fact all the chatter of you, only showing showing what it is like, the right the don't know you to any, but, and you, a grade, something the way about stayed in the middle, but how you value? When I work on the, believe that all country, don't know me

Only, don't know you are along!
I don't of saying, I don't, don't, don't one, then, but I don't want more and more, I don't know, but, but Because, I don't want, it, you might get you, they, light, and, have, all, the

that, you, don't, to

I don't, but, I don't, but, I don't,
and, you, to, manage, without, that,
something, smile, the, don't, only, right,
what, I, don't, at, it, but, you, of, it,
I, don't, don't, don't, don't, don't, but, the,
young, as, you, don't, tell, me.

Debbie, I can take out my ear plugs. Seriously, your vivacious reactions and actions add spice to my everyday. Bring a lot of happy bubbles back to share with me.

Bonnie, I have fine penicils, and I need your help. That empty front desk bespeaks graciousness and willingness which I hope is relaxing and having fun. Just keep my with your own money.

Susan, sun tan, getiteness and your helpfulness arent back there where they usually are. I miss the luster of pretty brown eyes.

Cathy, even your guestess is missed. I hope your girls didnt talk Mr. Stude to death. Have enough fun to last in memory forever.

Sharon, if the long tresses get tangled in a shrub, have them loosened before a bear comes along. Blue eyes wait in that old chair back there.

Lita, No one can say your loudness disturbed. I hope you laugh, squeal, holler, and what have you in fun. I miss my "tiddit".

Brenda K. After homeroom (when you are usually at the store) ended, I waited for your coming in. I hope you feel fit as a fiddle and have fun!

Mrs Wilson, I didn't get seasick in the lounge at break from foot shaking. Neither did I get a potato chip that you so often give me. The real clicking of a race horse not being here leaves the birds silent.

Mr Steele, I didn't have to hold my breath to get by the counter today. But my coffee just didn't taste right cause it wasn't down along with yours.

I miss and recognize:

- The wonderful talent of Danny B.
- The thoughtful sweetness of Jan B.
- The quiet loneliness of Rose Burke
- The cooperative spirit of Brenda C.
- The selfless service of Linda R.
- The bubbling disposition of Bebbie F.
- The gentlemanly thoughtfulness of Billy Joe
- The Christian faith of Stanny H.
- The warm affection of Richard
- The unselfish helpfulness of Bennie
- The sophisticatedness of ...
- The quiet dignity of Cathy L.
- The intellectual ability of Sharon
- The stabilizing maturity of Frankie
- The quaint charm of Rita
- The courageous character of Brenda R.
- The unexplored possibilities of Randy
- The enviable figure + spirit of Mrs Wilson
- The strong, needed stability of Mr. Steele

I don't want to go away at all,
 I'm not sure I would be the only thing if you talk about me, I'm here to stay. I'll be at the end of the road.
