Q11 What topics do you think teachers and administrators need to discuss or learn more about to better support your family and help your student be successful in school?

1	I feel we already receive the utmost support from teachers and administrators.	2/26/2018 3:03 PM
2	All topics.	2/26/2018 3:00 PM
3	I feel the teachers and administration should do research on the benefits of Recess. The students do not get enough time to exhaust energy and are expected to be well behaved while sitting on a powder keg. I would also like administration to learn more about best practices for our lunchroom, beginning with the food. I have witnessed on several occasions outdated food that is stale or molded being served to the children. Unacceptable! I also see lots of yelling from the adults. I feel that there needs to be training on how to handle a noisy lunchroom so that we maintain order without making the children mute. Very concerned parent!	2/26/2018 2:53 PM
4	Paying attention to children's strong points, academically and their skills are not always shown in school calculated graphs.	2/26/2018 2:38 PM
5	I would love to know the events at school which parents can attend. Ex: parties, special activities, class parties :).	2/26/2018 2:35 PM

7	Understanding students are all different.	2/26/2018 2:28 PM
8	I believe they should be more educated/taught about adolescences mental disorders. So they'll get a better understanding of how to approach and handle certain situations that child may be going through rather it be their past, present or future. Overall I would have to express my generosity and appreciation to almost all the staff I've ever come in contact with over the last 6+ years.	2/26/2018 2:27 PM

Dr. Jackson has it down to a science. Thank You..	2/26/2018 11:58 AM
12	Reading- My child needs extra help with reading. I feel I had to ask for it. Even though all his teachers since he has been in school have seen this. We even help him back in the first grade for this reason. I don't understand why he can't get the extra help from Mrs. BUZZELL? I have the teacher he has this year she has been helping him on Tuesdays for an hour. I pray this will help him to get his reading level up. I am afraid he will have a hard time with Georgia Milestones! Thank You!	2/23/2018 3:03 PM

20	Some students are too shy to ask the teacher for help and they get behind not understanding to current item(s) they're learning. Then the teacher goes on to the next lesson, leaving some children trying to still learn the past lesson. Thus, their grades start to suffer. I'm not sure how to solve this problem, I just wanted to make it noticed. Thanks!	2/23/2018 10:46 AM

44	I think the parents need to know about all the resources available in the Resource area.	2/12/2018 1:38 PM
45	I do feel that more early intervention programs should be put in place when a child is struggling at the K-1st grade level. I feel that teachers at these levels are less concerned with the 3rd grade Milestones testing leaving the 2nd grade teachers at a major disadvantage. My niece was held back in the 2nd grade and now I fear that my daughter will be to, and she really only struggles with one area while excelling in other subjects. I brought my concerns to both the K and 1st grade teachers and they both said that "she will grow out of it". Clearly she did not even with working with her every night and all summer long. Now I have to look into private tutoring to help with this ongoing issue.	2/12/2018 1:35 PM
