Thanksgiving Feast

This year we unfortunately have to do things a little different for our Thanksgiving feast. We are still going to do some fun activities and have a yummy meal, but we sadly can not invite our special volunteers, board members, and booster club members to enjoy a Thanksgiving feast with the students.

They will all be greatly missed this year.

We will be serving our special “feast” to our B-group students on Tuesday, Nov, 24th and to our A-group students on Wednesday, Nov. 25th.

(Some fantastic art from our 3rd grade students!)

MRS. YOUNG
KINDERGARTEN AND 1ST GRADE

Hello parents!

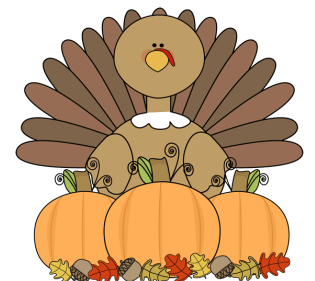

Our students this week worked very hard in ELA in learning about proper nouns in first grade and working on more words in Kindergarten.

The Kindergarteners are starting to learn even more sounds starting next week! Even though it is only 3 days, the students are going to be working hard on learning more each day!

First graders have been learning about finding their answers in the text to find the page number. This is the beginning step of using citations. We will keep covering this over the course of the year.

Please remember to turn your student's work in every day they are home learners. This makes the process easier for grading, and helps in not getting behind on work. Please message me if you come across any problems or have any concerns with the online learning.

Please have a wonderful Thanksgiving break! Enjoy your kids!

Hello Families,

This week students have been working hard on learning the concept of multiplication. They have now taken their first test and will be moving on from the concept of multiplication to learning and memorizing the facts. It will be extremely important that you help your child memorize their facts at home. This doesn't need to be anything structured, something as simple as asking your child math facts in the car or while you are cooking dinner is perfect just pick a time that works for your family. When starting out your child will likely still need to draw a picture or skip count until they are able to memorize the fact, a small whiteboard works great for this!

This was an exciting week in ELA, students worked on researching and writing a 4 to 5 paragraph paper on an animal of their choosing. Students learned all sorts of fun facts including that an Ostrich can run up to 40 miles per hour and a Moose can eat up to 70 pounds of food in one day! Students will be typing their final drafts at home. Your student will hopefully remember from last year but that was a long time ago so if they need a reminder just let me know. This was the third graders first attempt at a real essay and they did an amazing job. Make sure to read yours with your child and tell them how proud you are of their hard work.

With the rainy weather came the opportunity to play in the bus garage with scooters, fun was had by all!

Super Second Grade Weekly Update: 11/20/20

Second grade students have been thinking a lot about thankfulness and gratitude this month. With that theme in mind, our growth mindset mantra this week was, "Feedback is a gift, accept it."

During our Zoom meetings and embedded into our online SEL Google Classroom lessons we have been discussing the two main components of feedback. The first is providing feedback. The second is receiving feedback.

As valued members of a learning community each student will have opportunities to both provide and receive meaningful feedback. We want the intent of these exchanges to be positive and enriching so we can learn and grow every day.

Students and I will be using "THiNK" to establish positive, working relationships with one another. "T" is for "True;" is what I am about to say true? "H" is for "Helpful;" is what I am about to say helpful? "N" is for "Necessary;" does what I am about to say need to be said? "K" is for "Kind;" is what I am about to say kind? If we answer no to any of these questions we should probably re"THiNK" our feedback.

We can also use "THiNK" to receive feedback. By encouraging students to "THiNK" before they speak, we can encourage them to act appropriately rather than react.

On Tuesday, Nov. 24th second graders will be doing something a little different during their usual 9:00 am Zoom session. They will have the option of sharing a Thanksgiving themed song, poem, piece of art, or their Pilgrim Pocketbook. Students will need to have their piece to showcase prepared and ready to share in under two minutes. Please practice these pieces this weekend.

Family members are welcome to log into our Second Grade Thanksgiving Showcase on 11/24! I have included a shareable Zoom link in our class' Dojo Class Story. You can find the link below as well.

Happy Friday Fantastic 4th Graders!

What a busy week we have had. We have been working hard in class to wrap up our current ELA unit on Informative and persuasive writing based on information from the Middle Ages, and are looking forward to our next unit which will focus on Poetry. We will also be experimenting with Holiday Readers Theater as we move closer to our Winter Break. In Math we are getting near the end of our chapter on Multiplication, and have been learning different ways to multiply, which has been both fun and a bit challenging for some students. Please remember that when learning new math strategies, the more you can practice them the more you will understand and remember them, and the easier they will become. So completing assignments is important to get that practice in. In Science we have been wrapping up our segment on waves by learning about sound waves and Morse Code. We will have a holiday themed opportunity to apply this knowledge next week, which should be a lot of fun!

Next week we will be celebrating Thanksgiving on Tuesday and Wednesday in our cohort, and reviewing more about what Thanksgiving is all about, and what it means to each of us and our families. Our 4th graders will have several fun art projects to complete, as well as some fun Thanksgiving based activities to do, and a Feast to participate in as well. Also, just a reminder, our current book order is due next Wednesday, 11/25/20 by 2:00pm. They can be ordered by using the code on the back of the book order forms, or by sending the forms filled out with a check. Please let me know if you need additional forms or have any questions on the book orders.

This year we have continued to place focus on learning and exhibiting positive character traits in our school. The traits we have covered so far this year have been Responsibility, Safety and Generosity. A BIG Shout out to Abigail, Samantha, and Aalilyanna for each demonstrating both knowledge of, and improvement in one of these areas this fall, and striving to be the most fabulous fourth graders they can be. Have a great weekend, and I wish you and your families well as you prepare for your Thanksgiving Day plans.

Hello Parents and Students,

It is hard to believe that we are almost to Thanksgiving already. Even though it is a strange school year with all sorts of new challenges, I am certainly thankful for many things. I am thankful that although many school districts in this state are completely remote learning, we are fortunate enough to be in a position to have face to face learning for some of the days each week. I am also thankful for school parents who do their best to balance school, work, and family. You are doing a great job and I appreciate your commitment to getting as much work done as possible while still being able to take care of your families.

Next week we will be doing some Thanksgiving crafts and having a socially distant feast for the students in the room. For the crafts, please have your students bring scissors and a glue stick to school. We will also be learning about the Pilgrim voyage from England to Holland and then to America and what their lives were like in England, Holland, on the Mayflower and then in America.

Next week is a short week with Thursday and Friday off from school so please, take time to be with your families and recharge your batteries. After we return from this short break we will be heading into December and continuing with our studies. We have some fun things planned for December so keep tuned in and we'll see you then!

Have a great weekend,
Mr. B
