

AIG Resources from NCDPI

Links for Learning - from NCDPI and NCDPI Wiki Central: Check out both areas of AIG to find valuable resources for yourself and your AIG students. You might find the following websites informative and helpful:

NCDPI AIG Homepage: <http://www.ncpublicschools.org/advancedlearning/>

NCDPI AIG Resources:

<http://www.ncpublicschools.org/advancedlearning/aig/resources/organizations/>

NCDPI Reports & Literature:

<http://www.ncpublicschools.org/advancedlearning/aig/resources/reports/>

North Carolina AIG Program Standards:

<http://www.ncpublicschools.org/docs/advancedlearning/aig/ncaig-program-standards.pdf>

Visit the NCDPI AIG Wiki: <http://ncaig.ncdpi.wikispaces.net/Home>

National Association for Gifted Children: <http://www.nagc.org>

Traits of Giftedness: <http://www.nagc.org/resources-publications/resources/my-child-gifted/common-characteristics-gifted-individuals/traits>

The AIG Booster Shots were developed in direct response to district and teacher needs. These sessions will provide you the tools needed for a professional development series that is meaningful (and quick!) and can support teachers with instruction for AIG learners tomorrow!

Booster Shots: <http://ncaig.ncdpi.wikispaces.net/AIG+Booster+Shot+Series>

AIG-IRP provides teachers with instructional resources to challenge their advanced learners in grades K-12. These resources bring together gifted education best practices and standards in ELA, math, science, and social studies. Teachers developed these resources in partnership with content and gifted education experts.

AIG-IRP: <http://ncaigirp.ncdpi.wikispaces.net/home>

Byrdseed - <http://www.byrdseed.com/>

The creators of this website are seeking to provide a better understanding of gifted learners. The goal is to provide assistance with teaching across the curriculum, differentiate classroom instruction, and celebrate the unique social and emotional needs of gifted learners. Byrdseed has an abundance of relevant articles addressing social issues, creativity, ELA, and math needs of gifted learners.

The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History <http://www.gilderlehrman.org/> The Gilder Lehrman Affiliate School Program provides free resources and support for teaching and studying American history. This interactive website has activities for students to explore and broaden their understanding of American history through re-enactments and other forums.

Supporting Emotional Needs of the Gifted (SENG)- <http://sengifted.org/>

SENG's mission is to empower families and communities to assist gifted student in their journey to reach their full potential, not just intellectually, but also physically, emotionally, socially, and spiritually. One unique feature of this web-site are the SENGINARs, called SENGINARs, which provide parents, teachers, and mental health professionals with access to top experts in the AIG field.

