Suggested Activities for Practicing Kindness While Playing Ball Games

(1) Goal Kick

Place the ball on a marker (or behind a stick) and kick it into a homemade goal using sticks or rocks. (Be sure to give plenty of encouraging comments to each other as you try.)

(2) Partner Kick

Kick the ball to each other, increasing distance with repetitions. (Practice saying "Are you ready?" and "Here you go!" to play nicely, being sure not to hit the other person too hard with the ball.)

(3) Relay

Take turns kicking the ball from a starting point to a cone/stick, and then back to the same starting point. Pass it to the next person to have a go. (Be patient waiting your turn and don't forget to say "Thank you" when you get the ball passed to you.)

(4) Measuring Distance

Try to kick the ball as far as you can, measuring how far you can kick by placing a rock or stick where the ball landed. (Be proud of each other's achievements instead of focusing on "winning.")

(5) Counting Rolls

Sit across from each other and roll the ball to each other. How fast can you roll it; how many times without stopping? You may like to count as the ball goes back and forth, suggestion a number you can aim to get to such as 10, 20 or 50 depending on age. (Say "Well done!" and "Good job!" to celebrate each other's' hard work when you reach a goal number)

(6) Partner Bounce

Throw the ball to each other while standing still. Then take a step back and try adding a bounce in between. (Try to throw and bounce so that your partner can catch the ball easily; think of how to make it fun for them as this is the kind thing to do.)

(7) Partner Sing

Toss or kick the ball to one another as you sing a song, such as the ABC's or "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star." Can you throw/kick along with the rhythm? Can you sing and throw/kick at the same time or is it quite tricky? (Be sure not to get angry with someone if they "mess up." Say, "That's okay, we can try again.")

(8) Up In The Air

Throw the ball up and then try to catch it. How high can you throw it? (Practice taking turns and kindly negotiate sharing the ball by saying, "Okay, you have five throws and then I'll have five throws.")
