Is Your Child Feeling Anxious?

This year has been one of many changes and this may have resulted in your child feeling anxious.

Anxiety is a fear or worry about what is to come. Some anxiety is expected in certain situations like taking a test or giving a speech. It's our body's natural response to stress. If anxiety is interfering with daily routines, it may help to talk with someone, find an activity to do or reframe the situation.

On the next page are some ways that anxiety may present itself. If you notice that your child is exhibiting any of these and they become disruptive to daily life, try helping your child explain how they are feeling, draw a picture or write about it. If the anxiety persists, contact your school counselor or check the resources available in Lake Havasu on the Starline Elementary webpage under Counselor's Corner.

Anxiety presents itself in many different ways...

The desire to control people and events

Difficulty getting to sleep

Feeling agitated or angry

Defiance and other challenging behaviors

Having high expectations for self, including school work & sports

Avoiding activities or events (including school)

Pain like stomachaches and headaches

Struggling to pay attention and focus

Intolerance of uncertainty

Crying and difficulty managing emotions

Over-planning for situations and events

Feeling worried about situations or events
